HARDING RESTS IN IN TOMB AT MARION

WORLD WIDE TRIBUTE PAID TO DEAD LEADER

GREATEST REVERENCE EVER PAID TO ONE MAN

The Final Rites Marked the Close of the Longest Sustained Period of Mourning Ever Accorded to a Public Official.

Burial of Warren G. Harding at Marion, Ohio, closed the longest sustained tribute in honor of a public official in the history of this or any other country. From the time President Harding died in San Francisco, the nation paid him honor daily from coast to coast. For the first time in America, a very large portion of the populace was permitted to participate directly in manifestations of grief at the casket of their chief.

Similar tributes were paid the martyred Lincoln after he was assassinated at Washington and his body was borne back to Springfield; scores of thousands stood in awed reverence when McKinley, shot at Buffalo, was taken back to Washington and later to his home in Canton, Ohio; there were thousands who stood with bowed heads and saddened hearts when Garfield, shot at Baltimore, was taken to his last rest in Ohio.

But great as were these demonstrations, they did not compare with those of the populace which turned out to pay final honor to Warren G. Harding at every point his body passed through, from San Francisco to Washington, and then again from Washington back to Marion, his home, where he lies in the eternal sleep.

They laid him away as he wanted to go, surrounded by his loving friends and far from the pomp of temporal power. There on the side of a maple-shaded knoll he sleeps, near his mother and sister that went before him.

As the bright rays of a lowering sun fell across the flag-covered casket he was carried into the vault by the sturdy hands that have guarded him on the long journey from San Francisco. And the departed president passed for all time beyond reach of this world's cares.

Out on the rolling slopes of Marion cemetery were gathered the thousands who a few hours before had filed by the casket. They crowded over the lawns around the ivy-covered vault. The great and lowly were there.

There was a long wait as the simple cortege crawled slowly up Gospel hill to the tomb. Then, over the massed heads, could be seen the crepe-draped tip of the president's standard, moving slowly up the gravel lane. Behind rolled the big gray hearse. The casket was carried to the open door of the tomb, where is rested a moment in the sunlight while the last prayers were said and the last hymns sung.

Tenderly the stalwart guards lifted their burden and moved silently into the shadow of the tomb. "Taps" was sounded. Then Mrs. Harding, supported by the faithful Christian, stepped into the tomb, to be alone with her dead a moment. Brave to the last, she went back to her car and to the empty room on East Center street.

The aged father, too, bore his loss like a soldier, though his eyes were red with weeping through the hours before. He, too, went back to the empty room.

For six long hours, countless thousands, who had stood patiently since dawn, shuffled along East Center street for blocks, waiting hours for a fleeting glimpse of the casket. Some children carried little bunches of flowers to place as their last offerings.

Aged women gave the last remnants of their waning strength to plod along the long line and came out wiping their eyes.

Far up the street beyond the double file, thousands were massed between the curbs and the buildings. Many had driven hours and stood all through the morning in the August sun. Soldiers moved along the lines carrying first-aid kits, which were frequently needed.

At least 40,000 must have passed the casket, more than the population of Marion. As many more failed to reach the shrine, for the great men of the nation had come from Washington and the funeral must be held at the appointed hour.

President Coolidge, showing great consideration, kept out of the picture, remaining on his car until time for the final rites. He drove to the house on Center street with his cabinet. There a prayer was said.

The casket was carried out to the hearse. The dignitaries formed a lane through which Hrs. Harding, shaking her head mournfully, came out on the arm of Christian. The father followed and other relatives fell behind. There was no military formality. Just the hearse and a short line of cars—a bare dozen. Two hundred employes of the Marion Star walked. That was all that marked the last earthly journey.

Then at the tomb a little semi-circle was formed around the casket Mrs. Harding stood near the head. Near her were George Christian and Dr. Sawyer. Next to Dr. Harding President and Mrs. Coolidge, Chief Justice Taft and the cabinet. After the invocation, the choir of Trinity Baptist church sang "Lead Kindly Light." The Scripture was read.

The great throng could not hear and there was a low murmur as many moved about for better points of vantage.

The aged father stood bravely, but with trembling lips. Attorney General Daugherty, shaken by tragedy and illness in his declining days, stood with shaking knees—crushed by his loss.

President Coolidge was like a graven image and such emotions as flitted through his mind were suppressed.

The great government that Harding had served had already done all it could, and its agents were there now only as private citizens to honor the dead. They blended into the background and their presence was scarcely noted.

Also there is one not tied by blood, but by years of friendship. Gathered in by the childless Hardings as a son, George B. Christian served faithfully even in death. He was loyal to his chief and it was on his arm that Mrs. Harding has leaned in the last seven days of agony. He stood by her at the tomb and with a word of comfort braced her in that moment when her spirit seemed about to break. He walked with her into the shadow of the tomb. His chief and friend is gone.

So now the president rests under the ivy-covered vault. Six eagles, newly set on pillars in a semi-circle about the entrance, are all that recall the high office which he held. But banked over the grassy mound of the vault are many wreaths. Some from lodge brothers, some from the foreign governments and one—a cross of flaming scarlet, bears he letters of the Ku Klux Klan. It had been left mysteriously on the lawn of the Harding home during the morning and was carried with the others to be placed around the tomb.

There he sleeps, down close to the earth that bore him, back again near his mother's side, and close to the friends he loved.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS RE-ELECT SUPREME OFFICERS

Montreal.—James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia was reelected supreme knight of the Knights of Columbus at the closing session of the forty-first annual international convention of the order. All incumbent supreme officers and directors were reelected, including David F. Supple of San Francisco, who will be supreme warden for the coming two-year term.

States Deputy Frank E. Michel, jr., of Sacramento, leader of the California delegation, presented a resolution calling for elaborate entertainment and reception plans by the Knights in San Francisco during the fifth annual national convention of the American Legion to be held there October 15 to 19, the resolution being unanimously passed, and a fund voted for the program.

Supreme Warden David F. Supple was named chairman of the supreme board's committee charged with the administration of the entertainment fund and program.

LIVES PERILED AS DYNAMITE EXPLODES IN BOX PLANT

San Francisco.—A heavy charge of dynamite was exploded in the yards of the Pacific Box company here, while all but nine of the employes were absent in tribute to the late President Harding. This fact probably averted a heavy loss of life, the man left on duty when the crews were dismissed being merely shaken up by the explosion. Detectives sent to the spot immediately after the blast found several particles of books and newspapers such as are usually found among radicals. Their belief is that the bomb was intended merely as a demonstration and not to take life.

A thorough search was made of the yards, but no other explosives were found. Detectives said that at least two sticks of dynamite were set off in the blast.

Wheat Shortage Assailed

Chicago.—The plan of the American Farm Bureau federation for storing wheat on farms until prices advance is unsound, impractical and incapable of permanent benefit to the farmer, John J. Stream, president of the Chicago board of trade, declared as he vigorously assailed "political agitators" for "destroying the farmers' credit."

Examiner F. E. Mullen of the interstate commerce commission heard testimony of a number of representatives of Pacific coast states railroads, offered to show reason for an increase of freight rates for short line roads because of parcel post competition effecting quantity shipments at rates below approved freight rates.

Asserting that California is the only coast state which has failed to complete its portion of the Pacific highway and charging that the California Highway commission has disregarded its pledge to the people to rush completion of main line highways, the Portland, Ore., chamber of commerce has broadcasted appeals to the various civic organizations of northern California asking that they join in demanding that the new highway board carry out its promises.

Governor Cuts Gas Price

Mitchell, S. D.—There was a rush on the state gasoline supply depot here, following orders of Governor McMaster issued from the capitol at Pierre, providing for purchase of "gas" by the public at the state supply station at 16 cents per gallon, a 10-cent cut under the prevailing retail price. Governor McMaster denounced the 26-cent price in South Dakota, and he advised the public to form cooperatives and purchase gas direct by the carload.

Plumas county had six forest fires and several other blazes all of unknown origin over the week end, which occurred in such a manner as to point to incendiarism. One fire started in the woods at Taylor creek and one in the woods of the Trio Lumber company at the same time. At the Scanlon Lumber company plant a slab pile was fired, the mining company's mill at Englemine was completely destroyed, and a store house at Cromberg was burned. At Sierra Valley a large barn was mysteriously burned.

VEHICLE ACT WILL HECK CAR THEFTS

California legal Barricade against the automobile thief is matrially strengthened by the new California vehicle act which becomes effective September 1, according to George Chalmers. assistant manager and head of the inter-insurance bureau of the California State Automobile association.

"For years past the automobile thief." said Chalmers yesterday. "has evaded the law by storing stolen vehicles in public and private garages until search for them had died down and the danger of disposing of the stolen property thus minimized

"The authorities have been powerless to require private and public garages to list the numbers cars stolen. In consequence the automobile thief first rented a an automobile he would drive same to this garage, usually situated in a secluded district, and there change the appearance of the car, or remove identification marks, while the authorities were vigorously searchng for the missing vehicle. When the search had died down the thief would then dispose of the car with little fear of detection.

"This loophole has been eliminated by the new vehicle act, the association was instrumental in drafting and passing through the legislature. This act. for the protection of motorists, imposes certain duties upon the owners of garage, both public and private. and makes non-performance of same a misdemeanor. Section 56 provides that every owner or lessee of any building used for the purposes of a private garage who shall rent such building or any space therein for the storage of a motor vehicle when such agreement to rent includes only such private garage or space therein and any motor vehicle shall be stored therein shall within 24 hours thereafter report such fact, together with the name of the person to whom such building or space is rented and a description of the motor vehicle stored therein. including the name of the maker, the motor number and the license number. if any. to the police department in any city or city and county if said building be located within a city or city and county or to the sheriff of the county if the building be located within unincorporated county territory. The term 'private garage' shall not be constructed to include any public warehouse nor any public garage as herein defined.

"Every person engaged in the business of conducting a public garage is required to keep a written record of every motor vehicle stored therein for compensation for a period longer than 12 hours, which record shall include the name and address of the person storing such vehicle together with a brief description of such vehicle including the name or make. the motor number and the license number thereof as shown by the number plates and registration certificate upon such vehicle. Every such record shall be open to inspection by any peace officer.

"These provisions. which will be welcomed by motor car owners, police department and sheriffs, will do much to reduce thefts."

BRIGHT LIGHTS AT CAMPBELL

One of our business concerns that surely put Campbell on the map is the Santa Clara Gravel Co. This is done in several ways. It furnishes material for building large structures and all kinds of concrete work thereby spreading a part of Campbell in various parts of the state and gaining much publicity in that manner.

Probably the most spectacular way is the spreading of a great deal of light over its vicinity. If anyone wants to find Campbell at night let him look from some high spot in the valley or foothills and see the Santa Clara Gravel Co. lighted up during its night work

It is a pretty sight and several of our towns-people have remarked on its beauty. Look for it any night as the company is running every night.

AUTO CAMPS BIG AD FOR TOWN

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Brown and daughter, Ruth, returned last week from an auto trip thru Oregon and Washington. They visited a number of cities and towns and found most of them with very good accomodations for travellers.

They were particularly enthusiastic over the auto camp at Grant's Pass which is equipped with shower baths, electricity, plates for cooking and every convenience for a charge of fifty cents a night.

In commenting on the many splendid places they spoke of what a contrast San Jose presented, and what an opportunity it was missing for winning friends and for advertising itself. Satisfied travellers spread the fact broadcast in the present system of touring and can give a place a lot of good advertising, but unaccommodated ones can just as surely give it a black eye and turn travel away.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Eckles were in Campbell Tuesday, coming from the C. E. Conference at Mount Hermon. Wednesday, with Mrs. Eckles' mother, Mrs. Aten, they went to Asilomar for a few days attending the Presbyterian Synod and see the wonderful pageant which will be produced there on Saturday. They will spend the remainder of their vacation at Mount Hermon, occupying the H. Hutton cottage.

Keeping our town clean and attractive should be a matter of pride for each one of us, and our example might influence some of our transient population, who may not feel that it matters any to us how the streets look. If Campbell could become known as "Spotless Town," maybe the old adage "When in Rome do as the Romans do," would lead transients and tourists to help us keep it so.

Now that the paving of Campbell avenue has been completed, it seems only reasonable that our citizens should make a united effort to keep it respectably clean. Candy and gum, newspapers of all kinds, fruit peelings and so forth, could easily be deposited some where else than on the sidewalks or in the street.

A notice has been sent out that fraudulent money orders are being presented to stores and hotels in places in California and warning against them. Be sure you know your party before cashing any orders until the parties are apprehended.

D. A. Yeager and wife spent Sunday at the coast, visiting Santa Cruz, Seabright and Capitola. The Rural Letter carriers of the district, which includes five counties, held their meeting there, and decided to come to Campbell for their October gathering.

"WE THANK THEE FOR WHAT THIS MAN HAS MEANT"

Marion, Aug. 10.—The Rev. Dr. Jesse Swank, pastor of Epworth M E. church of which Mrs. Harding is a member, delivered the following prayer at the funeral services for President Harding at the cemetery:

Almighty God, Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, giver of every good and every perfect gift. the Father of the lights, in whom there is no variableness or shadow of turning, we come with confidence to Thee even in such a time as this because we know that thou are not only God of greatness and of power, but also a God of mercy and of love.

We thank Thee for our land and nation and for Thy guiding hand upon it from our inception until this hour We thank Thee for what this man, our friend and brother. has meant in the progress and development of our nation. We feel that he is in imitation of Him whom he called Master and Lord; that he has laid down his life in the service of his country, and we believe that he has received Thy "well done."

May Thy blessing upon him who asslumes the vast responsibility of taking the helm and guiding the future of this land of ours. May Thy blessing rest upon our nation and its people and upon our city in this time of great bereavement.

Give Thy blessing to the aged father. who offered his own life in the service of his country and now has given this noble son. Sustain and suport him in this great trial and sorrow and guide his feet in the paths of peace until his way shall end in the land beyond the grave where he can meet again the dear ones whom he has "loved long since and lost a while"

Bless the other members of the family and may they feel him near.

May Thy special blessing rest upon Mrs Harding, the wife of our loved dead. who lives to mourn the loss of this devoted companion who journeyed with her up in the steps of life until they reached the heights together. May she now hear Thee say "fear thou not. for I am with thee. be not dismayed for I am Thy God. I will strengthen thee, yea, I will help thee, yea, I will uphold thee with the right arm of My righteousness" May she know that "the Eternal God is her refuge and underneath are the everlasting arms."

When these solem rites are over and she goes back to walk the way of life alone, may she realize that she is not alone. for Thou hast said to all Thy children: "I will never leave thee. nor forsake thee," and may her noble example of confidence and trust in God be an inspiration to all those who are called to walk with her the "Via Dolorosa."

May the peace of God descend upon all hearts and may we all learn to live, not for ourselves but for each other and for the good that we may do as this noble man and woman.

TRUST YOUR BANKER

If ever there was a time in the history of business when people, who have little money to invest, should refuse to listen to the siren song of a very large number of agents scouring the country to sell stocks and securities of one kind or another, it is right now

Millions of hard earned dollars, have been poured into these rat holes simply because the agents have held out inducements in the way of interest above that which home institutions can pay.

Buying foreign and unknown stocks always puts us in mind of the man who patronizes mail-order houses of the country. These same out-of-town purchasers when hard times come along and they need credit must then apply to the home merchant, whom they have ignored, for help. Just so with a good many investors who buy stocks they know nothing of. When loss comes as it's doing with alarming frequency these days, then they must go around to the home banker for greatly needed help.

The home banker. who is generally honest and conservative and who you have known all your life. will not advise you to go on Wall street, neither will he try to steal your money; but he can and will tell you of good bonds to buy and good investments to make. He knows because he is in the money business. When you want a horse shod you don't take him to a plumber, you take him to the blacksmith shop because he man there is in the business. And its the ame with money; go to some man who knows. a whom you have confidence and in all money ransactions he ought to be your home banker.

In this age, a wise chicken doesn't cross the road.

A lot of men think the world is hard on them because they can't land a soft berth.

Lots of people are like some theories—they just will not work.

At least in aviation there won't be any detour signs, nor any chickens nor cows in the roads.

HE SILENCED THE TEMPTER

Threat Must Have Cost the Former Miser Suffering, but He Rose to the Occasion.

"If you find yourself getting close-fisted," remarked a Pennsylvania congressman, "it is time to begin to emulate the example of a wealthy old farmer in my state. He was noted for years as an old miser, but was converted during protracted meeting. Shortly afterward a poor man who had been burned out and had nothing for his family to eat, came to him for help. The farmer thought he would be liberal and give the man a ham from his smokehouse. On his way to get it the tempter whispered to him:

"'Give him the smallest one you have.'

"He had a struggle with himself as to whether he should give him a large or a small ham, but finally he took down the largest one he could find.

"'You are a fool,' the tempter whispered to him.

"'If you don't keep your darned mouth shut,' the farmer snarled at him, 'I will give him every ham I have in the smokehouse.'"—National Republican.

URUGUAYAN "GAUCHO" GONE

Natural Evolution Has Resulted in Disappearance of Most Picturesque Character.

While the Uruguayan "gaucho" was a full-blooded Indian, in the Argentine the name was extended to designate the halfbreeds and creoles who led the romantic cowboy life of the great plains. Here the "gaucho" became indistinguishable from the "paisano" or "countryman" of the American Southwest, or the "ranchero" type of the Mexican agricultural states. Naturally he then became the enemy of the Indians, a man of peace withal, though a somewhat turbulent peace, forerunner of the great modern agriculturist.

In this evolutionary stage, in the middle of the last century, the Argentine "gaucho," with his characteristic poncho, long boots, tight pants, long hair tied back about the head, his kerchief at his neck, and his high, narrow-brimmed hat, lent a barbaric note of color to the formation of the rural elements of the embryonic nation. Subjecting himself to wage service on the great estates, he came to be civilized, and being so, he arrived gradually at the extinction which civilization effects for all outstanding individualistic types.

Valentino

Insures for $300,000

INTEREST in life insurance is heightened in the popular mind by the news that Rodolph Valentino, noted film star, has lately taken out a policy for $300,000.

And the popular mind is just where interest in life insurance needs to be aroused. While most men of large incomes take out adequate life policies, average people, the 95 to 97 per cent of us, should carry more protection than they do.

Paying on a life policy is, in effect, a method of saving. A young man determines, say, to have an estate of at least $10,000 twenty years from now. He takes endowment insurance for that amount. If he lives twenty years he receives the $10,000, or if he dies earlier, his heirs have the sum. In one case he has saved his estate by paying insurance premiums, in the other case his heirs receive what he has failed to save. In any event the $10,000 is sure.

But life insurance should not, of course, displace regular savings accounts; for the two kinds of savings go along together. Whatever is sound business practice, however, benefits all the community, and the bank indirectly; and our bank, as a good bank should have, has a good will for every other kind of business. We are for the farmer, the merchant, the agent, the manufacturer, the worker, and whoever else serves the public good.

The Los Gatos Mail-News has become quite metropolitan. It has moved into new commodious quarters, installed a new Babcock press and is putting out a very neat seven-column booster paper, of which the residents of that community may well feel proud.

SAM HOUSTON TWICE MARRIED

His First Venture Unfortunate, but His Second Had Good Effect on His Life.

Long after Gen. Sam Houston's death, the mystery of his separation from his first wife was solved by means of some private letters which fell into the hands of his heirs. His first wife, Eliza Allen, a Nashville belle, before she met Houston had been engaged to a Tennesseean named Douglass. Houston was governor of Tennessee when he fell in love with Miss Allen. Her ambitious parents caused her to break with Douglass and accept the famous young governor. Still loving Douglass, she was married to Houston. Three months later Houston had discovered, somehow, that his adoration was lavished on a woman who had been sold to him by her parents and who cared for another man. Houston, heartbroken, behaved in heroic fashion. He gave up everything, left his home and high office, took himself wholly out of his wife's life, and bore without contradiction the vile rumors that were circulated about him. Mrs. Houston, after her husband had wrecked his career for her sake, obtained a divorce on the ground of abandonment and was married to Douglass.

After leaving his wife, Houston resigned the governorship and went among the Indians. Three years later he threw his lot with the Texans. Under his leadership the Mexicans were defeated and Texas was established as a republic. Houston was not content; he caused the annexation of Texas to the United States. In April, 1830, his wife having obtained a divorce, he married Margaret Moffette of Alabama, who exercised an ennobling and restraining force over him.

Waited Long to Hear Opera.

While the opera "Lohengrin" was produced in 14 cities during the first nine years, its composer, Wagner, did not see it in this time. Guerber's "Stories of the Wagner Opera," says:

"When the opera was first played to an audience composed of musical and literary people from all parts of Europe, whom Liszt had invited to be present, it produced a powerful impression. From the memorable night of its first performance dates the success of the Wagner movement in Germany. During the next nine years this opera was given in 14 cities, and Wagner, who was then a political exile, is reported to have sadly remarked. 'I shall soon be the only German who has not heard Lohengrin.'"

It was in 1861, 11 years after its first performance, that Wagner finally heard it for the first time in Vienna.

Signs of Trouble.

A Montana fire marshal lists the following as sure signs that something unpleasant is going to happen to you:

"A crack in your chimney is a sure sign that you are going to move. If you dream of smelling smoke, it is a sign you are asleep and had better wake up. To see a paperhanger papering over a flue-hole indicates an impending loss. It is bad luck to look into a dark closet with a match. If you can see your shadow from an oil lamp while filling a gasoline stove it indicates a crowd of people coming to your house. When the wind moans, it is extremely bad luck to burn trash near the house. If you smell gas or gasoline and look for it with a light, it foretells that you are about to start on a long journey. Even if your house and furniture are 'covered by insurance,' it is extremely unlucky to have them burn on Friday the 13th."

Crescent Was Christian Once.

The national emblem of the Turks is the crescent. Their organization for aiding their wounded is called "The Red Crescent." Under the crescent they fought the soldiers of the cross. Yet crescent as well as cross was really a Christian emblem. For the crescent was first used by the primitive Christians of Constantinople as an emblem of the growing power of Christianity. It was not until about the year 1453, after the Turks had captured Constantinople, that they adopted the crescent as their national emblem. The reason why has never been satisfactorily explained. The crescent is essentially a symbol, and yet the Koran forbids the use of all symbols or images in the religious ceremonies of the Turks. The crescent is used, however, and none seem to object, or recall its Christian origin and significance.

Rockefeller Foundation.

The Rockefeller Foundation, endowed by John D. Rockefeller with more than 100 million dollars, was given a charter by the state of New York in 1913. Its purpose is "to promote the well-being and advance the civilization of the people of the United States and its territories and possessions, and of foreign lands, in the acquisition and dissemination of knowledge, in the prevention of suffering, and in the promotion of any and all the elements of human progress."

A Born Salesman.

"Did you ever have any exciting experiences?"

"About twenty years ago," said the brisk promoter. "I was ordered to leave a western town by a notorious two-gun man who didn't like the cut of my clothes."

"As you are still alive, I suppose you left?"

"No, I bought him a couple of drinks and sold him the suit."—Detroit Free Press.

SANTA CLARA STREAMS WILL GET TROUT FRY

Over 200,000 trout fry placed in streams on the Western side of the Santa Clara valley, August 8, by County Game Warden I. L. Koppell, according to announcement made today. The trout will be received tonight from the Brookdale hatchery and Koppell and several assistants will start out early in the morning with the young fish. The Uvas, Llagas and Almaden creeks will be the chief streams stocked. According to Koppell the fry to be planted tomorrow will be trout five or six inches long by the time the fishing season opens next May. Streams on the eastern side of the valley have already been stocked with thousands of young fish.

THE ONLY "SURE THING" IN THE INVESTMENT FIELD

The Advice of Honest Men Who Know, and Willingness to Be Content With Reasonable Return, Declared Only Safe Road to Assured Income.

"Success in life depends upon the investments made of talents and time," says an article on investing prepared by the Committee on Public Education of the American Bankers Association. "Future return will be gain or loss, according to these investments. That is a law of life which controls investment of money, just as it controls investment of talents." The article, which is particularly timely in these days when so many are being robbed by fake investments, continues:

In the business sense, the word investment relates to the use of money in acquiring ownership of property. Ownership may represent entire possession of property as of a home; partial ownership as holding stock in a corporation; or conditional ownership as in the case of buying a mortgage or a bond. When a person makes an investment in bonds, he is really loaning his money to the government or corporation issuing them. He will receive the interest which they earn as long as he owns them, or until they are paid off.

Ownership of great corporations is vested in individuals who have invested money in their stock or bonds. Many people regard the ownership of the United States Steel Corporation, for example, as differing from the ownership of, say, a small workshop. Yet investors in shares of Steel Corporation stock are entitled to the same rights, under the law, as the owner of the workshop. In the corporation, the owners hold certificates of stock as evidence of their investment, whereas the owner of the little workshop holds a deed as title to his land.

Capitalistic Laws Protect Investors

Because the laws stand for the equal protection of all investors, it is possible and profitable to make good investments. It gives an incentive to work hard and to invest. The person who wishes to invest must first work and accumulate funds with which to do so.

Bonds are always secured by mortgages on the lands, buildings or other property of the corporation for which the money has been used. When a bond matures the money must be repaid to the owner of the bond.

All investors are a part of a great financial system which gathers up and puts to work the wealth of the country for the mutual benefit, prosperity, and well-being of all. In America, it is possible for any one who is willing to pay the price of self-denial and hard work, to be an investor. Good investments made in early life by saving such small sums as may be possible, lay the foundation for providing the comforts of later years, when it is harder to earn a livelihood and when poverty often becomes the condition of those who have not practiced thrift in youth.

It is not wise for those without experience to undertake to make investments of their money without guidance by those who know. Many companies are constantly being organized to promote unsound schemes, referred to as "wild-cat." There are always solicitors ready to relieve people of their savings by the promise of big returns. The lure of great wealth is always a temptation by which thousands of thrifty people are deprived of hard-earned savings every year. Widows and orphans who have inherited money are frequently sought and made the targets of these fake stock salesmen. Misery and suffering are the usual results.

Greed Defeats Safety

Many people with small means also lose money because they insist on a high rate of interest on their investments. Safety of principal should be considered above large returns in interest or dividends. Small investors should never buy high-rate, speculative investments, in which there is a great risk, but should stick to those which pay a fair rate and which are known to be safe.

To know whether an investment is worth buying the investor should go to a banker, or a successful business man in whom he has confidence, get his opinion and act in accordance with it. In all probability this will mean the difference between successful investment and total loss of his money.

The banker deals with investments every day and desires to give all the help and information he can, and the business man has learned by experience the need of caution and careful judgment. They believe one should have a clear understanding of an investment before it is purchased. They know the need for avoiding stock promotion schemes and get-rich-quick propositions which in many cases have brought poverty and suffering. While many states have passed laws aimed to protect the public against promoters of fake investments, thousands of people annually fall victims to their wiles, because they fail to seek advice of those experienced in making investments.

Good advice and temperate expectations mark the only road to safe investment and an assured income. There is no other certain way.

COMPULSORY THRIFT

In Kansas a group of power and telephone companies is trying a compulsory thrift plan, which affects about 1,200 employees and applies to every member of the organization from the president to the humblest day laborer. The plan requires that each shall save and invest monthly at least 10 per cent of his income.

Every month each employee must make a report to the general office of how much he has saved, and in what he has invested it. The investment must be approved by a committee competent to advise. Government securities, savings bank accounts, building and loan stock, payment on a home, even payments on furniture are allowed. If debts have been incurred, these must be listed and payments may be arranged on them, but no more are to be assumed. The idea is to make the employee live within his means and also lay aside something in a definite form.

Reports for the first nine months show that about 13 per cent of the wages have been saved, no single employee falling below 10 per cent. This amounts to over $100,000. Failure to report or to save brings dismissal, but in only two instances among the 1,200 employees was such action needed. Budget books are distributed and their use explained as a helpful method in establishing a working scale of living that will allow for thrift.

The Nibley-Stoddard Lumber company has purchased 121,000,000 feet of pine, fir and cedar adjacent to the Western Pacific railroad in Plumas county, paying the state $376,000. Cutting must be completed by 1951.

Father Thomas Horgan of the Catherdal of the Blessed Sacrament, Sacramento, is slated for appointment as bishop of the new Catholic diocese which embraces Fresno county and adjacent sections.

California has participated in the $1,160,695,516 advanced to farmers of the country by the joint stock land banks and federal land banks, by borrowing $31,464,800 up to June 30.

Prof. Ruliffs Stephens Holway of the University of California and Mrs. Etta L. Ogden, a teacher in the Oakland schools, were married at Santa Rosa. They will reside in Berkeley.

"CAPITALISTS"—AND DON'T KNOW IT

A good many people who rail against capital are beating their own backs. Some are savings bank depositors; some have shares in building and loan associations; some have bought a liberty bond; some have ordered a stock of goods for their store. All of them, without knowing it, have performed a great miracle, for they have turned the work of their hands or their brains into a new product which, while it helps them, is helping thousands of others. Every one of them is a capitalist as most of us are—unless we are tramps or paupers or ne'er-do-wells—and we may well be proud of the name. For capitalism, instead of being the devilish invention of a few selfish interests, is the great material force that has lifted millions from poverty, degradation and slavery.

Like other human institutions, capital can be abused. So, too, can eyesight and health and education and love. Part of America's great job is to remedy and prevent such abuses. Sane people, however, do not cut off their feet to get rid of their corns.

Capital is today's surplus. It is what gives us a better start tomorrow than we had today. If we don't save it, we don't have it, and when we have it, it is useless until it is put to work.

If thrift is right, then it is right that people should acquire funds as the result of their industry and self-denial. But money that is merely hoarded is like water that becomes stagnant; it is harmful, not helpful. When money is put to work, it is like water power; it turns the wheels of industry, increases employment and raises the general level of comfort.

When every producer can create a surplus and that surplus can be gathered into a common fund and put to work for the common good we shall have reached an ideal condition. From "The Greatest Family in the World."

Professionalism vs Commercialism

Some people, misunderstanding the vocation of the funeral director, confuse the profession of embalming and the science of disinfection with the business of supplying caskets and funeral vehicles.

In reality there is no alliance. Any one can supply a casket or other receptacle. But not every person is fitted by nature to arrange and conduct a funeral service.

There is as much difference between the specially trained mortician and the dealer in coffins and caskets as there is between the trained and experienced surgeon and the dispenser of drugs.

It is a duty which every man owes himself and his family to be able to distinguish between professionalism and commercialism.
